Dear Mrs Guy

I received the parcel of cigarettes you so kindly sent me, and wish to thank you for them. It was good of you to send them.

I quite understand your wish to know where Taffy was buried. I believe it was near to Venray, but I have asked the Platoon Officer to make inquiries, and see if he can find out the exact place. He is going to do this and I will let you know as soon as he tells me, which I believe he will be able to do tomorrow.

Taffy told me he had a brother-in-law out here. I remember he used to meet him in France, and had some good times with him.

Well, Mrs Guy, I will close now, with my hope that we will meet after this lot is finished. My home is at Forest Gate, London.

With all best wishes and sympathy.

Rfn McCormack, V
